SUBJECT: Creation of Community Councils

ORIGIN

October 12, 2010 – Committee of the Whole – Committees of Council Reform

October 9, 2012 - Motion of Regional Council that dissolved the existing Community Council structure effective November 5, 2012 as a result of the reduction in the number of polling districts

November 13, 2012 - Notice of Motion to establish a revised Community Council structure

RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended that Halifax Regional Council:

- 1. Approve Administrative Order Number 48 Respecting the Creation of Community Councils that delegate to Community Councils the same powers that were previously delegated to the former Community Councils, with the exception of the power to create planning advisory committees, as set out in Appendix A attached hereto, effective Monday, December 3, 2012;
- 2. Amend Administrative Order Number 57 Respecting the Dissolution of Community Councils to clarify that Council may modify a continued area rate and to transfer the reporting requirements from Regional Council back to Community Council; as set out in Appendix B attached hereto; and
- 3. Direct staff to consolidate all the Watershed Advisory Boards into one Watershed Advisory Board and initiate the processes necessary to amend all applicable planning documents.

BACKGROUND

With the swearing in of Halifax Regional Council on Tuesday, November 6, 2012, HRM moved from having 23 districts to having 16 districts. In preparation for this transition, on October 9, 2012, Regional Council approved Administrative Order Number 57 Respecting the Dissolution of Community Councils, effective November 5, 2012, that established an interim governance structure. The Administrative Order effectively rolled back all Community Council powers to Regional Council and enables HRM to continue to carry on business until a new governance structure is created. Administrative Order Number 57 also enabled all existing Advisory and Planning Advisory Committees to remain in effect and report to Regional Council and continues the area rates.

Previously Regional Council, by Administrative Order, had created six Community Councils in the municipality, as follows:

- North West Community Council
- Harbour East Community Council
- Chebucto Community Council
- Western Region Community Council
- Peninsula Community Council
- Marine Drive, Valley and Canal Community Council

In each one of the previous six Administrative Orders, Regional Council had delegated certain authority for planning and development matters and financial matters.

Regional Council had delegated to Community Councils, the authority to: (1) hear variance appeals and site-plan appeals; (2) approve development by agreement if the applicable municipal planning strategy provides for it (with the exception of the HRM By Design Area); and (3) amend a land use by-law if the amendment carries out the intent of the municipal planning strategy. In relation to these three powers, Community Council had stood in the place and stead of Regional Council.

Regional Council had also delegated to the Community Councils the financial authority to determine expenditures to be financed by an area rate providing the Community Council submits a budget to Regional Council containing a proposed operating budget to be financed by the area rate and a proposed capital budget for projects in which HRM would be required to borrow money.

Also, Community Councils, once established, are vested with certain powers by the Halifax Regional Municipality (HRM) Charter including establishing advisory committees. This statutory power does not apply to planning advisory committees without a specific delegation from Regional Council in the Administrative Order creating the Community Councils. Past Administrative Orders have specifically delegated such authority to the Community Councils. As part of the interim governance recommendations the following Advisory and Planning Advisory Committees currently report to Regional Council:

- Dartmouth Lakes Advisory Board
- North West Planning Advisory Committee
- North West Transit Advisory Committee
- St. Margaret's Bay Coastal Planning Advisory Committee
- Purcell's Cove Community Steering Committee
- Shubenacadie Canal Commission
- Bedford Watershed Advisory Committee
- Halifax Watershed Advisory Board
- District 12 Planning Advisory Committee
- Point Pleasant Park Advisory Committee

It should be noted that Regional Council continues to seek increased authority from the Province for Community Councils in accordance with motions it passed on June 23, 2009 and August 3, 2010. The requested amendments to the HRM Charter would allow:

- Regional Council to delegate to Community Councils their authority to make decisions concerning amendments to various Municipal Planning Strategies when they are of a local, site-specific nature (HRM Charter s.30, request made in June 2009)
- Regional Council to delegate general authority to Community Councils for local matters, with the intent that the delegation of this authority evolve over time (HRM Charter s.29, request made in August 2010)
- Approval in principle of the vesting of authority to Community Councils for the establishment of area rates for enhanced services deemed by Halifax Regional Council to be local, if the necessary amendments to permit this are made to the HRM Charter (HRM Charter, s.25, request made August 2010)

To date, these legislative amendment requests remain under consideration with the Minister of Service Nova Scotia & Municipal Relations.

There are a significant variety of options for Regional Council to consider when resetting its new governance structure. The purpose of this report is to advise Regional Council of the various governance options available and to provide staff's recommended way forward based on the option analysis completed to date.

DISCUSSION

It is staff's understanding that Regional Council wishes to move quickly to re-establish a revised Community Council structure. In order to assist Council, staff have reviewed the implications of the new electoral boundaries, considered a range of options for a new governance structure, and generated a recommended alternative for Council's consideration.

Community Councils serve as a connection between local communities and municipal government throughout HRM on a wide variety of topics. However, it should be noted the majority of Community Council business is related to planning and development issues. As a result, effective and efficient discharge of Community Council duties related to planning and development processes is a major factor in the consideration of potential Community Council boundary options.

Regional Council derives its authority to create Community Councils from the HRM Charter. Sections 24 through 31A apply directly to the creation, powers and duties of Community Councils. These sections of the HRM Charter are provided in Appendix E for reference.

While the HRM Charter provides Regional Council the option to create one or more Community Councils, it is significant to note that Regional Council is not obligated to create Community Councils, Regional Council could continue to govern over the former Community Council responsibilities into the future. Staff is not recommending this option based on the rationale provided in the Alternatives section of this report.

In anticipation that the newly elected Regional Council would wish to reinstate a revised Community Council structure, a full range of concepts for boundary alternatives were considered by a staff review team and narrowed to the three most likely approaches:

- East/West/Central three Community Councils based on geography (Map 1)
- Rural/Suburban/Urban three Community Councils based on geography and settlement pattern (Map 2)
- 4 x 4 four Community Councils based on an even division of the 16 electoral districts (Map 3)

The following criteria were used to conduct the review of each of three scenarios:

- 1. Minimizing Conflict and Overlaps between Electoral Boundaries and Planning District Boundaries
- 2. Distribution of Councillor Workload
- 3. Capacity for Quorum/Number of Councillors
- 4. Maximizing Administrative Support Efficiency
- 5. Public Participation / Meeting Location
- 6. Communities of Interest/Regional Plan Alignment and Shared Issues

A summary of the review of each Community Council boundary option against each of the above criteria can be found in Appendix C.

In Appendix C the advantages and disadvantages of each boundary option is assessed and, while the relative differences in some cases are minor in nature, staff recommends the East/West/Central approach as the preferred alternative. To implement the East/West/Central boundary approach, a new Administrative Order Number 48 Respecting the Creation of Community Councils has been drafted and is attached as Appendix A. It is proposed that the Administrative Order come into effect Monday, December 3, 2012 to enable Community

Councils to conduct necessary business in early December. As well, Administrative Order Number 57 Respecting the Dissolution of Community Councils would need to be amended to clarify that Council may modify a continued area rate and to transfer the reporting requirements from Regional Council back to Community Council.

Staff is also recommending that Regional Council not delegate permissive planning powers that would enable Community Councils to create more Planning Advisory Committees until further advice can be provided from staff. There has been considerable concern raised by the Business and Development\Construction sectors regarding both the length of time that permit approvals are taking as well as the cost. Reducing the number of governance approvals is one potential step that Council could consider toward reducing process time and costs. Several of the Advisory and Planning Advisory Committees that currently exist and report to Regional Council will need to be redefined in the wake of a revised electoral boundaries and Community Council structure. Staff are recommending that the current Advisory and Planning Advisory Committee structures remain in place, reporting to their respective Community Council, until staff can analyze the required changes and potential options for moving forward with the most efficient governance structure possible.

With a similar view to streamlining governance, staff is further recommending that Regional Council direct staff to initiate the process to consolidate the Halifax, Bedford, and Dartmouth Lakes Advisory Boards and create a new Watershed Advisory Board. In 2010, HRM undertook a progressive governance effort with Regional Council culminating in the approval at Committee of the Whole of a Committee of Council Reform. The recommended actions, at the time, with respect to the three watershed advisory boards, were to consolidate and establish a policy advisory group to the Environment and Sustainability Standing Committee. This report is intended to complete that recommendation. The analysis in support of this recommendation is attached as Appendix D. Should Council approve this recommendation, staff will initiate the necessary amendments to all applicable planning documents. This process would include undertaking amendments to municipal planning strategies that will require a public hearing.

In conclusion, staff is recommending that Regional Council establish three new Community Councils within the municipality: Central Community Council, East Community Council, and West Community Council and these new Community Councils be vested with the same powers as the prior Community Councils, with the exception of the power to create additional planning advisory committees. Staff will be providing additional information to Regional Council on the planning advisory committees after staff have analyzed all the options for such committees. Staff is further recommending that the planning process be initiated to create one watershed advisory board in place of multiple boards.

ALTERNATIVES

Regional Council could consider any of the following alternatives to staff's recommendations:

- 1. Regional Council could continue to govern over the former Community Council responsibilities into the future. Eliminating the Community Council governance structure could potentially save in the order of $10,000/year owing to reduced meeting administrative costs. However, based on recent history, Regional Council could anticipate an annual additional workload in excess of 150 reports and approximately 60 to 80 public hearings that would serve to divert Council's attention away from regional matters. As a result, staff is not recommending this alternative.
- 2. Council could proceed with a Community Council structure aligned to Urban/Suburban/Rural boundaries (Map 2). This boundary option is not recommended based on the analysis provided in Appendix C.
- 3. Council could proceed with a Community Council structure aligned to four Community Councils based on an even division of the 16 Councillors and 16 electoral districts (Map 3). This boundary option is not recommended based on the analysis provided in Appendix C.
- 4. Council could direct staff to undertake an analysis of another Community Council boundary option not covered in this report.
- 5. Council could delegate Community Councils the authority to establish more Planning Advisory Committees than already exist. For the reasons outlined in this report, staff do not recommend this alternative without the benefit of further analysis from staff.
- 6. Council could direct staff to dissolve all current Planning Advisory Committees. Where the current PACs have specific roles identified in various land use regulations, staff do not recommend this alternative without the benefit of further analysis from staff.

- 7. Council could maintain the current Watershed Advisory Board structure. Based on the rationale provided at Appendix D, staff are not recommending this alternative.
- 8. Council could direct staff to dissolve all current Watershed Advisory Boards and not create a new consolidated Watershed Advisory Board. Staff do not recommend this alternative without the benefit of further analysis from staff.
- 9. Council could amend Section 2 (c) of Appendix A to include the HRM By Design (Downtown Halifax Secondary Municipal Planning Strategy) area in the jurisdiction of West Region Community Council so that Community Council can deal with Substantive Site Plan Approval Appeals rather than Regional Council.

Appendix C

Community Council Boundary Analysis

On the assumption that Regional Council would wish to reinstate a revised Community Council structure, a full range of concepts for boundary alternatives were considered by a staff review team and narrowed to the three most likely approaches:

- East/West/ Central three Community Councils based on geography (Map 1)
- Rural/Suburban/Urban three Community Councils based on geography and settlement pattern (Map 2)
- 4 x 4 four Community Councils based on an even division of the 16 electoral districts (Map 3)

The following criteria were used to conduct a review of each of the three scenarios:

- 1. Minimizing conflict and overlaps between electoral boundaries and planning district boundaries
- 2. Distribution of Councillor workload
- 3. Capacity for quorum/number of Councillors
- 4. Maximizing administrative support efficiency
- 5. Public participation/Meeting location
- 6. Communities of interest/Regional Plan alignment

A summary of the review for each of the above criteria is outlined below.

1. Conflict and Overlaps between Electoral Boundaries and Planning District Boundaries

As noted above, a significant portion of service delivered through Community Councils is related to planning and development issues. Distribution of planning and development work is based on planning district boundaries. Current planning district boundaries were originally based on old electoral boundaries and they do not align with current electoral boundaries. Community Council boundaries must be consistent with electoral boundaries.

Under these circumstances, overlaps between planning and electoral boundaries are unavoidable. In fact, there are currently a total of 66 separate areas of overlap between all planning and electoral boundaries. Each one of these geographic overlaps has the potential to lead to a requirement for multiple or dual Community Council meetings in order to deal with a planning district-wide matter.

Since both the planning district boundaries and the electoral boundaries are fixed, the only effective way to minimize the impact of these overlaps is to choose Community Council boundaries that eliminate as many conflicts as possible within the same Community Council area and limit the remaining overlaps to areas least likely to be subject to planning related activity requiring Community Council involvement.

Recommended Option Based on Conflict and overlaps between electoral boundaries and planning district boundaries: The East/West/Central scenario has the least number of overlaps (12). The Urban/Suburban/Rural scenario has 13, and the 4x4 option has 14. However, the 4x4 and Urban/Suburban/Rural scenarios have increased potential for impacts in areas more likely to be subject to development activity. The East/West/Central scenario provides an improvement by limiting the overlaps to areas less likely to be subject to planning/development activity. Based on this assessment, the East/West/Central is the preferred option.

It should be noted that the Regional Plan 5-Year Review (RP+5) presents another future opportunity to examine these overlaps. It may be possible to realign some of the existing plan area boundaries with electoral boundaries to further minimize these impacts. Based on the current RP+5 project timeline, recommendations for realignment would come before Regional Council in June 2013.

2. Distribution of Councillor Workload

Since service demands on Community Councils are increasing due to larger areas of responsibility and the total number of Councillors available to sit on Community Councils has been reduced to 16, increased workloads on individual Councillors can be expected. One way to mitigate this situation is to consider establishing Community Council boundaries that spread the Community Council workload more evenly throughout the region wherever practical.

Recommended Option Based on Equality of Councillor Workload: Since the bulk of Community Council work is driven by planning/development related activity, it would be preferable for each Community Council to have legislative authority over areas that generate similar volumes of activity. The 4x4 and the Urban/Suburban/Rural scenarios both result in an imbalance in work volumes. Under these two options, the Community Councils in the regional center would be regularly tasked with more service demands than the Community Council outside the regional centre. In comparison, the East/West/Central scenario results in a relatively equal distribution of Community Council work volume. Based on this assessment, East/West/Central is the preferred option.

3. Capacity for Quorum/Number of Councillors

Wherever possible, Community Councils should be comprised of a number of seats that is sufficient to:

- generate productive debate and bring forward a range of perspectives on any given issue;
- produce a simple majority vote;
- generate a quorum on a regular basis; and
- be reflective of representation by population.

Recommended Option Based on Capacity for a Quorum / Number of Councillors: Based on these requirements, five is seen as an optimum number of seats for a Community Council. The East/West/Central scenario (two Community Councils with five members each and one with six members) or the Urban/Suburban/Rural scenario (one Community Council with four, one with five and one with seven) are both options that are close to meeting all of these requirements. Of those two, the East/West/Central option is preferred because it provides a more even distribution and avoids the situation where one of the Community Councils has only four members.

4. Administrative Support Efficiency

While staff stands ready to provide efficient administrative support to Community Councils regardless of jurisdictional boundaries, it must be acknowledged that the task is more manageable given the economies of scale associated with a smaller number of Community Councils. Whereby two of the alternatives propose three Community Councils and the third option proposes an increase to four, the capacity for efficiency gains between the three options is minimal.

Recommended Option Based on Administrative Support Efficiency: Regardless of the minor extent of any gains, a boundary model with three Community Councils provides some advantage over a model containing four.

5. Public Participation / Meeting Location

HRM covers a very large geographical area. As a result, the availability of appropriately sited Community Council meeting locations must be considered in order to allow the best possible access for the majority of residents to attend meetings. It has been the practice of Community Councils with larger geographic areas to vary the location of meeting based on the location of items being considered on the agenda. This practice seems to function best when the geographic distances within Community Council boundary areas is minimized.

Recommended Option Based on Meeting Location Options: Despite the relatively large physical size of HRM's Eastern Region, the East/West/Central scenario provides the best options for meeting locations that encourage residents to attend a Community Council meeting within their community.

6. Communities of Interest/Regional Plan Alignment and Shared Issues

Creating Community Council boundaries that geographically define areas containing a common range of issues contributes to the efficiency and effectiveness of Community Council decision making. However, physical boundaries for these communities of interest can be difficult to define and they change significantly over time and based on any given issue. At the highest level, communities of interest can be generally aligned with the Urban/Suburban/Rural areas of the municipality. However, in addition to the idea of Urban/Suburban/Rural communities of interest, the ongoing review of the Regional Plan may further define communities of interest across the municipality in terms of a broad range of planning issues and settlement patterns. It is clearly within the scope of the RP+5 program to determine what needs to be done to achieve good design, connectivity of open space, housing affordability, and accessibility within the urban, suburban and rural areas. A series of policy changes to affect these desired outcomes will be an integral part of the RP+5 recommendations.

While the HRM by Design Centre Plan (2013-15) process will focus on planning issues and opportunities within an urban context, a program to review suburban and rural community plans will be proposed in the recommended changes to the Regional Plan. The implementation of a revised Regional Plan at the community level may present an opportunity in the future to consider the alignment of community councils closely around Urban/Suburban/Rural issues.

Recommended Option Based on Communities of Interest: The Urban/Suburban/Rural scenario would appear to be the option that most closely aligns with this criterion. However, strict alignment along these boundaries alone could contribute to an increase in an Urban/Suburban/Rural split in the community and contribute to a reduction in the concept of a regional approach to Community Council governance. Depending on the outcomes associated with the Regional Plan, future assessment of Community Council boundaries may be considered to accommodate revised communities of interest.

Conclusion

Staff reviewed a wide range of Community Council boundary alternatives and three concepts were identified for further assessment based on a defined set of criteria. The advantages and disadvantages of each concept were assessed and, while the relative differences in some cases were minor in nature, staff recommends the East/West/Central scenario as the preferred alternative at this time. Community Council boundary options should be evaluated again when Council considers proposed changes to the Regional Plan in future.

Appendix D Watershed Advisory Board Analysis

ORIGIN

October 12, 2010: Committee of the Whole - Committees of Council Reform May 24, 2012: North West Community Council, In Camera

BACKGROUND

Currently Halifax Regional Council has three watershed advisory boards: Dartmouth Lakes Advisory Board (DLAB), Halifax Watershed Advisory Board (HWAB), and Bedford Watershed Advisory Board (BWAB). The three boards have broad, but not equal, mandates related to watershed advisory. The primary purpose of the advisory boards has historically been to review planning applications.

In 2010, HRM undertook a progressive governance effort with Regional Council culminating in the approval at Committee of Whole of a Committee of Council Reform http://www.halifax.ca/council/agendasc/documents/101012cow3n.pdf.

The recommended actions, at the time, with respect to the three watershed advisory boards, were to consolidate and establish a policy advisory group to the Environment and Sustainability Standing Committee. This report is intended to complete that recommendation.

DISCUSSION/ANALYSIS

The Municipality is extremely fortunate to have the strong engagement of a number of citizens that genuinely care about the states of their lakes, streams, rivers, wetlands, and ocean. This has informed Regional Plan, Secondary Planning Strategies, Policy Development, Operational Service Delivery, and Planning Projects and Applications.

Work Volume

Each Watershed Advisory Board schedules a monthly meeting. Over the past three years, more than 50% of BWAB meetings have been cancelled due to lack of agenda items; HWAB has met consistently (the majority of planning applications in HRM tend to be under the geographic jurisdiction of HWAB); and DLAB has met consistently for the past three years. However, all three bodies have created their own status sheet by bringing forward non-planning application matters that are not directed by Community Councils or Regional Council, and are often within the mandate of the Environment and Sustainability Standing Committee or other bodies of elected officials. This creates duplicate work and confusion with respect to jurisdiction and direction to staff. As a result, maintaining consistent board staff support has been a challenge. With other municipal priorities (such as Regional Plan Review and approved Operational Work Plans), there is not capacity to consistently provide high level staff support on activities that are not priorities of, or directed, by elected officials.

With the adoption of good quality Regional and Community Policy with respect to watershed management, the need for three separate advisory boards has diminished. Examples of this policy include: Morris/Russel Lake Secondary Planning Strategy (in the MPSs for Dartmouth, Cole Harbour/Westphal and Eastern Passage/Cow Bay), Regional Planning Policy, and Land Use By-laws requiring Riparian Buffers and watercourse setbacks. With prescriptive approved policy, there are fewer planning projects coming forward requiring the subjective expertise and input of the Boards.

Consolidating the three advisory groups, and enabling work to be executed according to the needs and priorities of Regional Council, or its designated Community Council, will ensure effective effort and achieve desired environmental objectives and continue to ensure that project/application reviews continue to be carried out by a combined Board.

There continues to be important policy and project review functions. This requires the input of dedicated and informed community volunteers. That expertise can be put to use and supported by HRM staff through the consolidation of the three (3) Watershed Advisory Boards into one body with an expanded mandate.

Candidate Pool

While there is a strong pool of community subject matter experts, filling some of the current WAB vacancies has been a challenge (specifically, there are unfilled openings on DLAB). The consolidation of WABs would enable the pool of community subject matter experts to share in participation on municipal work. For example, in 2012, DLAB has worked on a policy review of the Dartmouth MPS. This work has gone well, but certainly members of HWAB and BWAB may have been able to effectively contribute to the project.

Estimated Cost Savings

It is estimated that moving to one consolidated Watershed Advisory Board will create an estimated cost savings of $50,000 annually. These savings primarily result from a reduction in the total number of meetings as well as a reduction in duplicated staff effort.

CONCLUSION

- 1. Dissolve the following three committees:
 - a. Halifax Watershed Advisory Board
 - b. Bedford Watershed Advisory Board
 - c. Dartmouth Lakes Advisory Board
- 2. Create a new consolidated Watershed Advisory Board with a terms of reference to be approved by Regional Council.
